The energetic managers of this route are pushing rapidly to completion the structures which are to make Grand Haven safe and easy of access; the south bridge being already built out a thousand feet into the Lake. When these works are finished—as they will be in a few months—no Harbor on the Lakes will equal that at the mouth of the Grand River. Inside, the water is deep the space ample; the facilities for receiving and discharging cargoes, all that could be asked; and the stormy winds are effectually barred out by high sand banks, covered with timber. Outside, there is plenty of water up to the bar, and for all ordinary craft enough there even now; while the improve ments in progress will soon render the Har bor accessible at all seasons of the year, to the largest craft that navigate our Lakes.

The work will cost the Railroad Company quarter of a million of dollars, and they have only done what the Federal Govern-

No sooner had the roar of artillery apprised the people of the approach of the steamers and their Eastern guests, than all Detroit and a small represen-

They are indeed, magnificent steamers, staunch, sea-worthy and admirably adapted to the business for which they were built. Every department about them is well officered, with the "right men in the right place"; and to-day I heard nothing but expressions of delight, at the perfection of the poats and the selection of the officers.

This afternoon the new steamers gave an excursion for the benefit of the two Charitable and Industrious Associations, which were largely attended. To-night they sail for Milwaukee, stopping only at Mackinge, and expecting to arrive at the City of Bricks by noon of Saturday-possibly a little earlier. It is to be hoped that all of our citizens will join, heart and hand, in welcoming them to our port, and in appropriate civilities to the Eastern guests who accompany them on the trip. They will remain at Milwaukee two days, and on Monday the new steamers will commence their regular trips across Lake

A Tough YARN. We are credilly inform-A Tough Yann.—We are credibly informed to be the don't believe it, that on Wednesday last, a five muskrat was rained down near the residence of Mr. Quimby, in the town of Lewiston. Mr. Q. was standing under a treat at the time and says he saw him fail. He run a short distance and was caught by Q. and was kept alive for several days. The truthfulness of the affair is fully vouched for, but we wish it distinctly understood that we don't know whether that muskrat was rained down or not. We are well aware that the weather guage has been sadly out of geer for a long time but we can hardly think it has taken to such antice as raining muskrats. We are not bound to believe it, and don't, even if we are obliged to doubt the statement of individuals who are to be believed when they tell more plausible stories. A muskrat rained down! We guess not, Mr. Quimby. You were probably standing on your head and he came out of a hole.—Portage City Record.

A Young We standing on your lead and he came out of the train proceeded at once to the spot ing down the fence next his cornileid. This provoked his wrath to such an extent that he immediately repaired to his stable, armed himself with a whip, mounted a horse and started for the "seene of action." He cannot upon the girls so stealthily that they did not discover him until he was within a few feet of them. They screamed—of course—and took to their heels, running in opposite directions. Horse THIEVES CAUGHT .- The sheriff of Horse Thieves Carcht.—The sheriff of Woodford, while pursuing a horse thief a few days since, saw him turn as if to fire at him, when he shot the thief through the heart, and he died instantly. That thief is effective ally caught and will do no more mischief. The Chicago Herald says it has received a letter from Lane Station that three more of the horse thieves, who have been proveling about the Northern portion of Illinois for some time, have been arrested. The party captured consisted of two men and a boy.—They were caught while stopping at a tavern and had in their possession three horses, one of the horses was an iron gray color, and was was responded to on hehalf of the avoir. of the horses was an iron grey color, and was identified as one stolen from Plymouth, Wis. The other two were, one black and one bay, stolen from Madison, Wis., and a top wagon was also found with the span.—Prairie du Chien Carrier.

DASTARDLY OUTRAGE. - Some miserable Dastarbly Outrage.—Some miserable scamp who had probably been denied his full share of nedous by one of our citizens, a few days since got revenge in a most diabolical way. Entering the melon patch, he plugged several fine ripe watermelons and infused Tarter Emetic. Next day the pingged melons were discovered by the proprietor, and as they were discovered by the proprietor, and as they were ripe and liable to decay, they were at once dispatched by the family. The consequence was, they were all severely indisposed, as might naturally be supposed from the dose they took. If the scoundred who prepared it could have had it crammed down his throat, the verdict of the jury would have been 's served him right."—Berlin City Courant, 25th.

FATAL ACCIDENT—On Thursday last, a young man named John Henry, while threshing on the premises of Gen. Taylor—the old "Cleavitt place," met with an accident that carried with it instantaneous death. While removing some straws from the vicinity of the rod leading to and very near the cylinder, the bolt that attached the rod to the knowless caucht in his cheen and described. knuckle, caught in his sleeve, and drawing him over against the thresher, broke his neck and caused other injuries of a horrible na-ture. The machine was stopped almost im-mediately, but life was already extinct when they first reached him, the only move or mo-tion noticed being a slight quivering of the muscles of the lips.—Waupun Times, 24th.

The Good Templars' Exenssion. ON BOARD THE STEAMER GAZELLE, }

LAME MICHIGAN, Aug. 24. Yesterday morning at half after seven o'lock, the Good Templars, composing the Queen City Lodge of Milwaukee, and some of tation from Milwaukee, turned out to meet their friends, numbering in all about two undred and fifty individuals—exclusive of the babies—assembled at Bowman's Hall. preparatory to making an excursion to Sheboygan Falls, in compliance with an invitation from the members of the same Order in that place. A goodly number of the excursionists were of the "gentler sex," whose sparkling eyes and happy faces needed no distance to lend "enchantment to the view."-BROCKWAY-who, by the bye, is an active advocate of the Temperance cause-very generously provided carriages to take the whole party to the boat, "without money, and Without price." The dark clouds which hung with ominous forebodings over the Eastern horizon as our party left the hall, entirely disappeared by the time we got fairly underway, and we had a bright sky and a pleasant breeze during the trip to Sheboygan. Our bonnie craft sped swiftly and smoothly over the blue surface of Lake Michigan, keeping all the while in sight of the beautiful scenery bordering the Lake. Most of our party dispersed in cozy groups about the cabin and upper deck, conversing, singing, joking, and admiring the fine panorama, while those more jovially disposed, betook themselves to the lower deck and tripped the "light fantastic toe," to the lively notes of Major Rosinson's life. Thus merrily the time passed until we reached the end of our steamboat jaunt, which was shortly after 1 o'-

From the hoat we marched in procession, the Cornet Band playing a favorite air, directly to the platform of the Sheboygan and Mississippi Rail Road, which passes through Sheboygan Falls, and is now completed to the village of Plymouth, a distance of fifteen miles from its terminus. The road has been open but a short time, and as its business at present is only of a local nature, two passenger cars only are employed upon it. These being not nearly sufficient to accommodate our party, it required but a glance to see that

To go back to where I left off on this digression: Our party, after leaving the cars was responded to on behalf of the excursionists by Dr. Hanson, when the feast was attended to, and such a feast was it as country folks alone know how to get up. To ise a suggestive expression, it was the very cream and honey of the land, and it is an necessary to say that the Lake air, which we had enjoyed all the forenoon, sharpened our appetites to such an extent that we felt disposed to do the good things which had been prepared for us the fullest justice and so we did. Our physical wants provided for, after a little recreation, all present, now numbering nearly five hundred, took seats in front of the speaker's stand. The regular address was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Cook, of the Milwaukee Summerfield Church. He spoke eloquently upon the fruitful theme of intem-Completed.—The laying of the track between this city and the La Crosse Junction, on the Chicago and North Western Railway, is now complete, and the construction train, with the necessary complement of men, has been passing over the line since Monday are represented by the construction of Monday. perance, and was listened to with marked

By the time the speaking was ended, and we had partaken of a very palatable desert of blackberries and cream, the cars were in waiting, and in a few minutes we had bid adieu to our generous entertainers, and were speeding our way towards Sheboygan. It was not yet dark when we got there, and the boat not having arrived, it was decid-LIBERALITY OF MR. A. T. STEWART.—
The New York correspondent of the Cleveland Leader says:

"I was told a few evenings since that Mr. A. T. Mr. Stewart says it is to the women he is indebted for his fortune, and now in return he will use it to benefit them, without regard to sect or creed."

the boat not having arrived, it was decided to visit in a body the fine natural park, of which the people of the Evergreen City are so justly proud. It is a level piece of sin size, and thickly shaded with cedar trees, whose foliage retains its emerald hue all the year round. count of the celebration to-morrow Exeursion by the New Steamers.

If will be seen by notice in our column that the steamships Milicaukee and Detroit will make an excursion at 3 o'clock on Sat urday afternoon, to give our citizens an opportunity to go on board, and examine those fine specimens of ocean steamship architecture. W. K. Mcin, Superintendent of the D. & M. Railway, has kindly consented to this excursion; and the proceeds are to be equally divided between the two Orphan Asylums of this city. Hence, in addition to visiting the ships and the excursion therein. a work of benevolence is at the same time done to two of our most worthy charities. We understand the number of tickets is limited to eight hundred—four hundred to each boat. They are to be fifty cents each. and are to be had of GEO. W. ALLEN, one of the Committee, at the office of the Wisconsin Leather Company, No. 80 East Water street from and after 8 o'clock this morning. Those who call early will secure the honor of participating in this grand affair.

The steamers will begin to receive on board those having tickets, at 2 o'clock P. M., and will leave on the excursion at 3 o'clock prerisely, and to be absent two or more hours. A band of music will accompany each steam. er, and there can be no doubt that there will c a jolly time generally. The ships will not be open to the visitation of the public on that day, except to the excursionists at the time of the excursion, and the one hour preceding. Don't trample on the small ones in the rush for the tickers.

Lient. Ives, the architect and engineer in charge of the Washington National Monument, has made an official report to the Society, in which he says that when raised to the height of six hundred feet, the entire weight of the shaft and foundation will be seventy thousand tons. The weight of the structure in its present condition is 40,000 tons. He has been unable to detect any appearance of settling or insecurity. By scientific calculations he has arrived at the conclusion that the weight atone of the monument, at its full tions he has arrived at the conclusion that the weight alone of the monument, at its full height, would offer a resistance eight times greater than the overturning effect of the heaviest tempest to which it would probably ever be exposed.

It was proposed to the Monument Society, many years ago, to surround the foot of the obelisk with a base of pantheon form, and an ougraving was made of the monument as it would appear if completed in accordance with that plan. An impression has been circulathat plan. An impression has been circulate that plan. An impression has been circulated through the country that the engraved design has been adopted and cannot be deviated from without tearing down what has already been built; but as it has not been the intention of the Society to accept the plan referred to, and as the error which exists seems to have an injurious effect, Lieut. Ives suggests the expediency of notifying the public, officially, that the obelisk is the only portion of the monument the form of which has been decided upon, and that the determination of the design on the base is still open for conthe design on the base is still open for con-sideration. DAILY, TRI-WEEKLY & WEEKLY

RUFUS KING, EDITOR.

FRIDAY MORNING, AUGUST 26, 1859.

A Speek of Trouble for Milwankee. The completion of the Cedar Valley Branch of the Chicago, Iowa and N. R. R. to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, has let a flood of light in. pot, and find they have committed themselves to the Cashmerian gulley that hold the Cedar river. The enterprising metropolis of Cedar Rapids, with its three mills and its hebdomodal press, has awakened to a lively sense of its importance.

The Bradford Cedar Valley News comes to us with a column and a half of prophetic talk, under the imposing caption: "The Cedar Valley, its relations to Dubuque and Mc-Gregor. Chicago against Milwaukse."

Milwaukee, along with Dubuque and Mc Gregor, is doomed, for now the whole trade If Milwankee intends to reach the trade of railroad with a western terminus at Prairie du Chien is too far off by one hundred miles."

St. Paul, being so far removed, will also feel the blow, and in a measure St. Louis. In fact every city of the West, except Chicago, is now in a fair way to bankruptcy through the astonishing exaltation of Cedar Valley The "Eden of Iowa" can thus afford to be face tions. "If Milwankee can afford to go to sleep while wide-awake Chicago is connecting her self by iron bands to the most fertile and radidly improving country in the West, let ns give our cheerful aid to Chicago." "Rapidly improving," is a high flight of imagination, but of no more dangerous altitude than the boldly put "fact" that Cedar Valley in direct communication by water with Minnesota. Having taken a survey of this ideutical Vale of Cashmere, or " Garden of Eden," and having failed to see the "communication," except by the antiquated Great Western Stage Company, we are at a loss to appreciate the beauty of the hyperbole. If Cedar Valley improves in the same ratio as the Des Moines Valley, Milwaukee must, indeed, arouse her self to secure so invaluable a trade.

If the boats that navigate the mouth of the Des Moines and that use Sheriff's attachments for ballast ever get over the slack, water obstructions, we pray our friends in the Garden to communicate. If the anticipated roads that are to link the Cedar elysium with the many other paradisacal regious of Minnesota and Iowa ever advance any faster than the Mississippi and Missouri road that long age foundered at Iowa City, or the Lyons road, whose embankments are taken for abo-riginal of first increases and blasting should be accoped out into Minnesota so that the produce of that State may be floated down—we shall begin to advocate the importance of instant action in the afore-mentioned Valley of Cedars and Massia, screet it may be, but nevertheless an attained with a screek and series of roads all terminating in the afore-mentioned Valley of Cedars and Minnesota so that the produce of that State may be floated down—we shall begin to advocate the importance of instant action in relation to a series of roads all terminating in the afore-mentioned Valley of Cedars and Minnesota so that the produce of the first one failed, through the wisdom of Green and Minnesota so that the produce of the produce of the produce of the produce of that the produce of the produce of that the produce of that the produce of that the produce of that the produce of the produ Garden of Eden.

The Great Eastern.

As this monstrous steamship is now en tirely completed, and about to sail to our shores, the following statistics in regard to her dimensions and capacity, will be found highly interesting to many of our readers: Length between perpendiculars, 689 ft. Ditto over all on upper deck, 691 ft. Breath of hall, 83 ft.

Rreath of hall, 83 ft.
Height from bottom of ship to top of iron of upper deck, 58 ft.

Number of blades to ditto, 4.
Weight of serew-propeller, 40 tons.
Height of principal saleons, 13 ft.
Weight of iron in the construction of the all, about 7000 tons.

Ditto of ship, with machinery, coals, cargo and full genipment, about 26,000 tons.
Dranget of wassfatted weight, 30 B. 5 in.
Weight of each of the paddle-engine cylinders, about 40 tons.
Number of ditto, 4.

Mameter of do, 84 inches.

Length of stroke, 4 feet.
Screw-engines about 1600-horse power. Screw-engines about 1600-horse power. Weight of shafts for paddle-engines, 80 tons. Weight of shafts for screw engine, 150 tons. Number of boilers to paddle-engines, 4.

The Great Eastern will sail for Portland Maine, early in the ensuing month, carrying both passengers and freight. The Courier & Enquirer, from which we get the statistics time in their lives. The rule of contrary is above, makes some comparisons by which a faint idea of the size and grandeur of the great judged. On the eve of the "coup d'état," monster ship may be obtained: "The Great Lustern differs from all ships which have been built before it in three respects-the chief of which is its excessive magnitude. Nothing like it has ever before thoated. Ordinary ships and steamors are like cock-boats by her side. We give the figures of her dimensions in another column, but those naked numerals convey but the vaguest idea. The immense steamships in the English and the American Navy hardly equal half her length or breadth, and yet such vessels as the Himalaya, the Persia, the Adriatic and the Niagara, have hitherto been regarded as absolute prodigies in marine architecture. Mrs. Malapropo to the contrary. "comparisons are" not always "odorous." This is an age of comparisons. Simple estimates in these days are out of the question, for while you are grasping one idea you are required to put it side by side with another, and pronounce which is the largest, the longest, or the heaviest. Xielding to this necessity of the limit, we yet know of nothing else that can stand comparison with Mr. Scott RUSSELL'S Great Steamship, except Noam's Ark: but even Noan's Ark could not match it. Let us see. The length of the ark was 300 cubits, its breadth 50 cubits, and its height 30 cubits. The Scripture "cubit." as stated by Sir Isaac Newton, is twenty inches and about sixty-two hundredths.-Bishop WILKINS makes it somewhat more namely, twenty-one inches and about sixtyeight hundredths. OUR CALEBONIA NEIGHBORS were thrown into a high state of excitement one day last week by the appearance of a mad dog in their midst. He bit several cattle, hogs, dogs, &c. Ho was attacked and killed with a pitch-fork. He has in all probability hitten other dogs in his course, and we shall not be at all surprised to hear of numerous instances of hydrophobia before many days. It has been very truly said, by whom I have forgotten, that "to encroach on every side where liberty exists is the first instinct of a despot. Napoleonism can never stand still! Either it must go on encroaching, or it must itself perish;" like our American Slavery, it would perish by stagnation—it must be fed, it thirsts for blood, military campaigns, great standing armies, immense fieets, not to protect colonies or commerce, for commercially a great standing armies, immense fieets, not to protect colonies or commerce, for commercially speaking. GRANTLEY F. BERRELEY.

Two Cities Cone into the Circus Business. A disappointed and broken down individual was once told in a ballad to "Get rid of hope, Go bay a rope, And go and hang yourself,"

Buffalo and Rochester, having got rid of all hope of reviving business, have each bought a rope, and are in a fair way of hanging themselves up for the derision of the whole uation. They have both gone into the circus business and are flercely in earnest about the matter. The newspapers of both cities daily beat their gougs and shout, "walk up, ladies and gentlemen, and see the own right-rope dancer in the universe worth seeing. Don't be humbugged with the other show, ladies and gentlemen; this is the only great, old, original, genuine performer on the show, ladies and gentlemen; this is the only great, old, original, genuine performer on the tight-rope now alive." So excited are the people of the two cities about their pet man-monkeys, that cach entertains a strong belief that every individual in the rival towns is worn to cut the opposition rope.

Meanwhile Blondin, determined not to be beaten, announces that next week he will cross the river, carrying with him a cook-stove and utensils, and will, when on the store and utensis, and will, when on the rope, make omeleits for the passengers of the Maid of the Mist.

The only way of settling this tremendous or the two citizens and their champions is, for the "Buffalo Pet" and the "Rochester Fancy" to meet on the rope in the center of Niagara River, and there light to the rules of the Prize it out, according to the rules of the Prize Ring.—Cleveland Herald.

state the salutory effect in my own aggravated case, of your excellent Hair Oil—(Occosine.) For many months my hair has been failing off, un-til I was fearful of losing it entirely. > A SUMMER NIGHT. BY E. H. LATHROP. The summer night, her classic snood, All flecked with abon curls And golden stars—a fire-fly brood— Her challee filled with pearls, Came up the East all silently, And shut the golden gate, When sat the sun so goldenly Arrayed in robes of state! She hing her sable curtains down, All crossed with silver bars, She drew them softly through the town And hushed its daily jars.

I saw the summer lightning fling His colors through the West; I heard the dreamy beetle sing His evening song of rest. I saw the chariot wheels of Mars Gleam through the distant blue, And then a flash of silvery cars, Like the white gleam of dew, Came gliding o'er the alry track Of moonlight, pale as dreams; I heard an echo beating back Like the quick pulse of streams I saw the waning barvest moon, Pale like a fading crown, Dropping its jewels far too soon, All through the quiet town.

Soft, dreamy clouds, like crystal cups, Sailed through the amber air, Flinging the edorous other drops All o'er the night's dark bair.

OUR FARM OF TWO ACRES. BY HARRIET MARTINEAU.

Here, then, we were at the ontset, with simply our cow-stable, pig-house, and tanks, and an acre and a quarter of ground on which to work, to produce food for a cow and pig, besides household vegetables; fettered also with the necessity, that, on account of the view from the windows, at least three quarters of an acre must remain in grass, the most expensive of all conditions. We pared off the corners, and laid them into the arable part, in the first instance, so as to have a grassy area just three quarters of an acre.—
To finish with the pasture first, the treatment it requires is this: Before the winter rains we give the grass a good dressing of guane every alternate year, or of bones broken, but not to powder, every third year. To finish with the pasture first, the treatment it requires is this: Before the winter rains we give the grass a good dressing of guano every alternate year, or of bones broken, but not to powder, every third year. Early in winter the whole is strewn with manure from the tank, and a compost heap we have in a hidden corner of the new half acre. At the end of February this is raked away and the meadow is bush harrowed. A month later it is well rolled and weeded, if any noxious weeds such as ox-eye daisles, or lishop's weeds are found rooted in it. If any moss appears after long rains, it is treated with lime. This care is well repaid by the beauty of the surface and the value of the grass—the little spot is conspicuous for its greenness when all the rest of the valley is of a uniform hay color; and there is no hay in the neighborhood to compare with ours.

The cows eat off the first growth in April. It is then shut up for six weeks or so for hay, and is mown toward the end of June, when

It is then shut up for six weeks or so for hay, and is mown toward the end of June, when it yields nearly three tons to the acre. We did not exhaust the ground by mowing it twice, but allowed the cows to feed it pretty close till November. After two winters we found that the anxiety of keeping such hay stacked in a rainy climate was more than the found that the anxiety of keeping such hay stacked in a rainy climate was more than the thing was worth; and I therefore huilt a hay house, and was only sorry that I had put it off so long. Knowing what the plague of rats is in such buildings, I adopted the only perfect security—that of using such materials as no vermine can penetrate. The floor was flagged as carefully as a kitchen floor, and slate stones went deep into the ground below the flags. A few years later, when a winter foundation penetrated every place in the level of the valleys, I granted a raised level floor to the entreaties of our farm man, and there our hay and straw keep perfectly well in all kinds

Hay, however, is an extravagant kind of food for cows; and ours have it only for variety, and as a resource when other things fail, or when they calve or happen to be ill. Our main dependence is on roots and vegetables. As this was nearly a new idea in the neighborhood, we were prodigiously ridiculed till our success induced first respect and then imitation. It was a current maxim that it takes three acres of land to feed a cow, and this may be true in the hill pastures which are mossy and indented. Our milk would are mossy and indented. Our milk would cost us sixpence a quart, it was said—we owers starying our poor cow—we were petting our row, so that she was like a spoiled child —such were the remarks nutil events silenced them, and people came to see how we arranged our ground, so as to get such crogs We constantly gave in explanation the current rule: "the more manure, the more green crops; the more stock, the more stock, the more stock, the more manure." And by degrees the true principle of stall-feeding and or state of the principle of state-teering and spade-tillage became olear to all enquirers.

Our soil is light,—not very deep, sufficiently fertile, and easily treated, but so stony in parts as to dismay a laborer from a clay or sand district. The neighbors advised my man to cover up the stones and think no more of them; but we concluded that it would be better to make up of some of them. bed cough. abundant space between both the plants and the rows. Hence our fine roots, and our weight of produce.

I need say nothing of our garden tillage, except that, with the exception of Winter potatoes, we obtain an abundant supply of vegetables, for a household of four persons, and their occasional guests. All common fruits become more plentiful every year. This being understood, we are here concerned only with the food for the cows and pigs. In sumer we sow cabbage-seed—being careful about mer we sow cabbage-seed—being careful about the kind, as the common cow-cabbage spoils the milk and butter. A kind between the Ham and Victoria cabbage is by the Norfolk people considered the best. The young plants are picked out in Autumn, some hunplants are picked out in Autumn, some hundreds per week for six weeks, to secure a succession next year. They should be eighteen inches apart, in rows a yard apart; and if they can be allowed to keep their places till they weigh ten or twelve pounds apiece, they of course afford a great bulk of food for the animals. Anywhere above four pounds is however worth the ground. The rows being placed so wide apart is to allow of the sowing of roots between them.

In April and May we sow turnips, (Swedes especially) carrots (particularly Relgian,) and mangold in the spaces left; and, by the time the root crops have been thinned, and are past the danger of the fly, the cabbages are fit to be cut. The alternate ones are taken first and light and air are thus 1-t in freely. eely.

When covered with roses, as mine is for the greater part, it is a luxury to look upon, reminding travelers of the rose covared trellies of hot countries—as in Louisiana, Damasous and Egypt. We were so delighted with it that I carried it along the bottom of the field, where also I was not chargeable with the care of the fence. It will be necessary to give some account of our live stock and its produce before we can form an estimate of profit or loss on the whole scheme of my little farm. Meantime, we may say thus much:

Twelve years ago we saw about our dwelling an acre and a quarter of grass, in unsightly condition, grazed by a sickly cow; a few beds of flowers and a few more of vegetables—the former not well kept, and the latter far from productive—and for the rest, a drive and little plantations, and slopes rarely heat, and always craring more care than we could give. For the grass I obtained, as I said, £4 10s a year; and to an occasional gardiner. I paid from £6 to £10 a year. In connection with these particulars, we must remember the housekeeping troubles—had butter, blue milk, and thin cream; costly vegetables which had traveled in the sun; hams costing £1 at least; eggs at 1d, each, and fow is scarce and skinny; and all this in a place where the supply of meat is precarious at the most important line of the year.

The whole place is in the neatest order conceivable; the slopes are mown, and the shrubs trimmed, and the paths clean, and the parteres gay, almost all the year round.—With only three-quarters of macre of grass, we have about £12 worth of hay; and part grazing for two cows for six mouths of they year. We have roots to the value of about £8 a year, exclusive of the benefit of their green part, which aflords several cwts, of food. Then, there are the cablages for the cows, which in favorable seasons have afforded the staple of their food for three or four nonths.
